LARRY AND HIS FRIEND

Larry had a friend who was in love with a young girl. Once his friend asked him for a favour. He explained to Larry that he wanted his girl to believe that he was very rich and Larry, as he thought, might help him.

He told Larry he would invite the girl to a restaurant. He asked Larry to come to the restaurant at the same time too. He also promised to invite Larry to their table and to introduce him to the girl. The girl's name was Nancy Ferguson. Larry's friend said that he would speak of things that belonged to him. Larry should interrupt him and explain to the girl how rich his friend was.

Larry agreed to help his friend. At the appointed time he came to the restaurant and saw his friend and Miss Ferguson having lunch. He was invited to their table and introduced to Miss Ferguson. Larry took a seat at their table. Larry's friend began his story: "Last Sunday I was out at my little place in the country..."

Larry interrupted him and told the girl that little place was a real estate. His friend smiled and went on: "So I was out there at my little house...". Larry interrupted him again and told the girl that it was not a little house, it was a beautiful palace.

His friend smiled again and continued his story: "I called in the maid..."

Larry interrupted his friend and informed Miss Ferguson that his friend had many maids there so he had called one of them.

His friend was very pleased and satisfied with the way Larry behaved. He felt that Miss Ferguson believed that he was very rich. He continued his story and explained to her that he wanted his maid to bring him some hot water, sugar and a little whisky as he got a cold..."

At that moment he was interrupted again and Larry told the girl that it was not a cold, it was galloping consumption.

THE FIRST NIGHT PERFORMANCE

Bernard Shaw, the famous playwright, enjoyed popularity all over the world. His plays were staged not only in Great Britain, but in many other countries too. They have been translated into many languages and in Russia Shaw's plays are staged in many cities and towns.

The most famous play "Pygmalion" has been screened.

Bernard Shaw was a very witty man and he was never afraid o subject himself to criticism. Here is a story which proves it.

It was the first night performance of B.Shaw's play "Arms and the Man". The house was full and B.Shaw attended the performance too. He sat in the box watching the people in the louse.

The play was warmly received by the audience. The scenery was beautiful and the actors played very well. There were many curtain calls and a lot of flowers.

It was clear the play was a success.

Suddenly B.Shaw noticed a young man in the gallery. The man tried to express his feelings. He kept whistling. He wanted to show that he did not like the play. The face of the young man was not familiar to B.Shaw. The playwright wanted to show the young man that he had seen him. When the performance was over the audience demanded that the author of the play should appear on the stage. Bernard Shaw went to the stage very slowly, waited until the applause had died out, raised his eyes and looked at the young critic in the gallery. Then he said:

"I quite agree with you, sir, but what can we two do against all these people?" With these words he left the stage.

HE CAN AFFORD IT

It was the rush hour and Bill was on his way home from London. When he reached Waterloo station, the train was at the platform. Nearly all the carriages were full, but Bill found a seat between two fat ladies in a non-smoking compartment.

When the train was starting off, a man ran down the platform, opened the carriage door and jumped into the compartment. He was wearing a black suit, a black hat and he was carrying a black bag, an umbrella and an evening newspaper. As the compartment was full, he opened the door into the corridor and walked towards the front of the train.

The train stopped at every station. Nearly all the passengers got out, except the two ladies in Bill's compartment. They talked so loudly that Bill went out of the compartment and walked towards the front of the train. Suddenly he saw the man in black again.

He was standing at the open window of a first-class compartment. His right hand was holding the communication cord. He was quite alone in the compartment. Before Bill could do anything, the man pulled the cord. The train stopped and Bill fell forward. When he got up, the man had gone. Bill rushed to the window and saw the man in black walking quickly towards a large house in the park. Bill wanted to run after the man, when the guard arrived.

The guard wondered who had pulled the cord. Bill pointed to the man in black who was walking to the big house. Bill thought he was a thief.

The guard looked out of the window. He saw the man in black. He said: "That's Sir Bertram Montague. He sometimes doesn't get out at the station — he pulls the communication cord as the train passes his house. It costs him 25 pounds each time. But he is so rich that he can afford it".

A TALKATIVE WOMAN

Once a middle-aged woman felt that she was seriously ill. She decided to consult a physician. She did not know any experienced physician in the town and asked a friend of hers to give her a piece of advice. She was given the name of Richard Prime who was a very experienced physician. It was very difficult to make an appointment with Dr.Prime as he had many patients in the town.

Nevertheless the sick woman managed to make an appointment with Dr. Prime and soon he consulted her. He listened to all her complaints very attentively, examined her very carefully, made the customary tests but failed to make any diagnosis. He could not say what the matter was.

Meanwhile the sick woman continued to describe her aches and pains. She spoke very loudly and quickly for an hour or so. The physician felt exhausted and thought: "If she were really ill, she would not be able to speak so energetically". He could not tell it to the sick woman, as she might get offended.

An idea came to his mind and he asked the sick woman to show him her tongue. The woman did so obediently. The physician examined the tongue carefully and thought: "How nice it is, when she doesn't talk!".

He could not say it out loud, so he told the sick woman the following words: "Now I know what your trouble is!" The woman looked at the physician with hope and fear. She was afraid that her disease was incurable. At last she said: "I hope my disease is curable, doctor".

The physician smiled and said: "Quite. Just your tongue needs a long rest". The woman was clever enough to follow the physician's advice and soon she felt much better.

TOO WELL

After O. Henry

Miss Carington was a famous actress. She began her life in a small village named Cranberry. But that was long ago. Now she was to perform the leading part in a new comedy.

A capable young actor Highsmith by name dreamt of being Miss Carington's partner in the new play. He told it to the manager. The manager explained to the young actor that if he wanted to play the part he must persuade Miss Carington to accept him as a partner.

The young actor knew very well that it was the part of a young farmer. The next day he went to Cranberry where he stayed for three days and gathered much information about the life and the people of that small village. Then he returned to the village and went to one of the restaurants where actors usually gathered after the performance.

He saw a small party sitting at the table. The star of that party was Miss Carington.

She noticed a poorly dressed man enter the restaurant. He approached the famous actress, greeted her and told her much interesting news about her relatives and friends from Cranberry. The way he spoke made her believe every word he said. She was sure he was a farmer.

In the end he told the famous actress that her mother wanted to see her again before she died. Then he gave her a rose he picked up from a bush in front of her house in Cranberry.

Miss Carington was so touched that she couldn't help crying. She thanked the young man and invited him to see her again at the hotel before he left the city.

The next morning the young actor dressed in the latest fashion went to the hotel. He was sure Miss Carington would agree to take him as her partner in the play if he told her everything.

To his surprise he was told that Miss Carington had left for her native village forever.

Highsmith realized that he had acted too well.

JIM, THE KILLER

After E.Frank Candlin

Mrs. Blake and her husband arrived at the platform of Victoria station. Suddenly they noticed a tall, heavy man with dark hair, carrying a case and a light overcoat over his arm. His face seemed familiar to Mrs. Blake. But she could not remember where she had seen the man. She wondered whether her husband knew the man. The answer was negative.

Mr. Blake bought his wife's ticket and found her a seat in an empty first-class carriage. He wished his wife a happy journey and left the station.

When the train was starting, the tall, heavy man got into the compartment, put his overcoat and case on the luggage-rack and occupied the seat facing Mrs. Blake.

Mrs. Blake looked at the man and remembered that there were some pictures of a man wanted by the police in the newspaper that day. It was written that the man was a killer. "A killer who always uses a knife", the paper said.

Meanwhile the man who was reading a newspaper took out a knife out of his pocket, then he took out an apple and began to peel it very slowly. He didn't pay attention to the lady sitting in front of him. Mrs. Blake couldn't tear her eyes from the knife. She was so much frightened that she couldn't speak. She didn't know what to do. Then she remembered that in the newspaper it was stated that a woman had been killed by that man in a train...

At that moment the man finished peeling the apple and put his knife on the seat beside him.

Soon the train began to slow down and stopped. The man stood up. Mrs. Blake didn't doubt that he was the killer, for outside on the platform two policemen were waiting for him.

When he got off the train both policemen greeted him.

"Good morning, Inspector", one of them said. "The Chief Constable is waiting for you at the police station, sir. We have a car outside".

Mrs. Blake took the newspaper from his seat. She saw two pictures on the front page — one of a small man with thin lips and the other of a big, heavy man with dark hair. Under the first picture there were the words "Jack, the killer", under the other "Inspector Thornton of Scotland Yard, in charge of the case".

Mrs. Blake smiled and thought that she should read newspapers more carefully.

The guests were treated to a very delicious dinner. They talked a lot. Some of them tried to make speeches. The only person who kept silent was B.Shaw. He listened to all those present but he didn't say a word.

Everybody knew that B.Shaw was very good at making short and witty speeches. Therefore he was asked to say something.

He agreed to make a speech and stood up. The guests stopped talking and looked at the famous playwright. He said that among all those present he knew at least twenty well-known men who were corrupt. He added that he could prove it.

Many of the guests expressed their protest and left the party. B.Shaw sent a letter to each of the twenty men. All the letters were alike:

"Everything has come out. Get away quickly". They received the letters and followed B.Shaw's advice.

A MISTAKE

Mark Twain was very fond of travelling. He did a lot of travelling and never got tired of it. Once he was travelling in France by train. He was going to visit a small town near Paris.

The previous day was very hard, Mark Twain was very tired and sleepy. He was afraid he would miss that town and asked the guard to wake him up before they got to the town.

Soon he fell asleep. When he woke up, the train was in Paris. Mark Twain looked at his watch. It was half past nine. He got very angry. He could not understand why the guard had not woken him up in time.

He went out of the compartment, came up to the guard and asked him why he had not woken him up. The latter looked at Mark Twain for a moment and then told him that he had done his best to keep his promise. When the train was approaching the town Mark Twain was going to visit, the guard woke up an American who did not want to get off the train in that small town. The guard was sure that the American was the very passenger who had asked him to wake him up. So he put him off the train instead of Mark Twain. He finished the story with a sentence: "You may be very angry with me, but not so angry as the American whom I put off the train instead of you".

JOSEPH HAYDN

Joseph Haydn, the famous Austrian composer, was born in 1732. He began to compose music at an early age. His music was based on folk songs. Slavic melodies played an important part in the works.

When Haydn was quite young, his friend and he decided to play a "serenade under the window of a well-known clown, whose name was Bernardone Curtz. Haydn composed the music and when everything was ready, they all went to the house where the famous clown lived. They began to play the melody. Curtz liked it so much that he asked who had composed such a nice melody. He was told that the name of the composer was Haydn. Curtz invited the young man to his house, gave him some verses and suggested Haydn should compose an opera.

Joseph Haydn was very much afraid as he had never composed an opera before. Yet he wanted to try.

He worked very hard. Everything went well till he came to the place where there was a storm at sea. The trouble was he had never seen a sea. Curtz could not help him as he had never seen a sea either.

Haydn began to try various kinds of melody but without success. At last he lost his temper, crashed his hands upon the piano and cried out: "Dash the storm!"

Curtz heard it, jumped out of his chair and cried out: "That's it! Go on like that!"

Many years had passed before Haydn's name became famous all over the world.

He composed music to many operas but he could never forget the storm in his first opera. He always laughed when he thought of it.

New York

New York has always been the gateway to the USA. New York is a financial center of the country where "money making" is the main law of life. New York is the symbol of capitalism and its Wall Street has become a nickname for big monopolies all over the world.

One of the largest cities in the world New York extends for 36 miles from north to south and is situated at the mouth of the Hudson River. In the 18th century New York grew into the largest city of the USA. Now New York is a great sea port, the leading textile and the financial center of the country. Manhattan Island with the Wall Street district is the heart of America's business and culture and the city of sky-scrapers. The highest of them is the 102- storey Empire State Building. In Manhattan at Broadway and 116 Street is Campus of Columbia University, and near it are houses of Harlem. There is not one Harlem but three: Spanish, Italian and the Black Harlem. The Black Harlem is the most overcrowded and its shabby houses contrast with rich houses on Sugar Hill to the North, where most prosperous people live.

It is a big modern city, with a heavy traffic. Subway provides the cheapest and fastest way to travel.

The United Kingdom. Geographical Position and Political System

The official name of Great Britain is the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland. The capital of the country is London. The United Kingdom is situated northwest of France on more than five hundred islands including one-sixth of the island of Ireland. The largest of these islands is called Great Britain. We should note that the name Great Britain does not refer to the whole country but only to England, Scotland, and Wales. Great Britain is the largest island in Europe and eighth largest in the world. It is almost twice the size of Iceland or Cuba. The UK has land boundaries only with one country, Ireland. Its closest continental neighbors are France and Belgium.

Although the UK is as close to the North Pole as eastern part of Siberia, its climate is much milder. The British climate is notorious for sudden changes, yet temperatures rarely fall below -10C or go higher than +32C.

The United Kingdom is a constitutional monarchy traditionally ruled by a monarch. The current monarch, her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, succeeded to the throne in 1952 and is Head of State, though this is a rather symbolic role. British Parliament is the oldest in the world and is composed of two chambers: the House of Lords and the House of Commons. The House of Lords consists of approximately 500 life peers (that is those who may sit in the Parliament all their lives), 92 hereditary peers (that is those whose children will have the right to sit in the Parliament) and 26 clergy representing church.

Apart from its parliamentary functions, the House of Lords is the highest court in the state. The House of Commons, unlike the House of Lords, is formed by regular elections in which citizens elect 659 members of parliament (or MPs) representing different political parties. The largest parties are the Labour Party and the Conservative Party.

St. Dmitry rostovsky: a legend and a real person

Rostov-on-Don bears the name of an outstanding person – the metropolitan Dmitry Rostovsky. The monument to Dmitry Rostovsky stands in front of the cathedral in the market square. But it happened so that Dmitry Rostovsky had never been to our city. He had died fifty years before his name was given to a new fortress on the river Don and the status of a saint had been imposed upon him only four years before this event.

The biography of Dmitry Rostovsky is a bright example of great innovations introduced by Peter I. He was born in the family of a Cossack Savva Tuptalo in December 1651 and his initial name was Daniil. As a boy he was smart, curious and passionately wanted to study. He got education in Kiev, then he became a monk and took a name Dmitry. He knew several foreign languages, traveled much and possessed a rare talent to communicate with people. He became metropolitan of Rostov the Great and Yaroslavl.

Being metropolitan, he stayed an unpretentious person who took care of education, health protection and hated bribery and ambitions. When he died in 1709 he left no gold or money but several unfinished papers which were put into the coffin according to his will.

There are following words in one of his books: “there are three main Christian virtues: faith, hope and love. It is impossible to find salvation without them. Which of them is the most important? – LOVE. Love to God, to one`s neighbour, etc. this virtue is immortal and eternal. It will stay for ever”.

The Tower of London

1. The Tower on the north bank of the Thames is one of the most ancient buildings of London. It was founded in the 11th century by William the Conqueror. But each monarch left some kind of personal mark on it. For many centuries the Tower has been a fortress, a palace, a prison and royal treasury. It is now a museum of arms and armour, one of the strongest fortresses and, as in Britain, it has the Crown Jewels.

2. The grey stones of the Tower could tell terrible stories of violence and injustice. Many sad and cruel events took place within the walls of the Tower. It was here that Thomas More, the great humanist, was falsely accused and executed. When Queen Elizabeth was a princess, she was sent to the Tower by Mary Tudor ('Bloody Mary') and kept prisoner for some time.

The ravens whose forefathers used to find food in the Tower still live here as part of its history. There is a legend that if the ravens disappear the Tower will fall. That is why the birds are carefully guarded.

3. The White Tower was built by William the Conqueror to protect and control the City of London. It is the oldest and the most important building, surrounded by other towers, which all have different names. The Tower is guarded by the Yeomen Warders, popularly called 'Beefeaters'. There are two letters, E.R., on the front of their tunics. They stand for the Queen's name Elizabeth Regina. The uniform is as it used to be in Tudor times. Their everyday uniform is black and red, but on state occasions they wear a ceremonial dress: fine red state uniforms with the golden and black stripes and the wide lace collar, which were in fashion in the 16th century.

4. Every night at 10 p.m. at the Tower of London the Ceremony of the Keys or locking up of the Tower for the night takes place. It goes back to the Middle Ages. Five minutes before the hour the Headwarder comes out with a bunch of keys and an old lantern. He goes to the guardhouse and cries: 'Escort for the keys'. Then he closes the three gates and goes to the sentry, who calls: 'Halt, who comes there?' Headwarder replies: 'The Keys'. 'Whose Keys?' demands the sentry. 'Queen Elizabeth's Keys', comes the answer. 'Advance Queen Elizabeth's Keys. All's well'. The keys are finally carried to the Queen's House where they are safe for the night. After the ceremony everyone who approaches the gate must give the password or turn away.

How not to behave badly abroad

Travelling to all corners of the world gets easier and easier. We live in a global village, but how well do we know and understand each other? Here is a simple test. Imagine you have arranged a meeting at four o'clock. What time should you expect your foreign business colleagues to arrive? If they're German, they'll be bang on time. If they're American, they'll probably be 15 minutes early. If they're British, they'll be 15 minutes late, and you should allow up to an hour for the Italians.

When the European Community began to increase in size, several guidebooks appeared giving advice on international etiquette. At first many people thought this was a joke, especially the British, who seemed to assume that the widespread understanding of their language meant a corresponding understanding of English customs. Very soon they had to change their ideas, as they realized that they had a lot to learn about how to behave with their foreign business friends.

For example:

The British are happy to have a business lunch and discuss business matters with a drink during the meal; the Japanese prefer not to work while eating. Lunch is a time to relax and get to know one another, and they rarely drink at lunchtime.

The Germans like to talk business before dinner; the French like to eat first and talk afterwards. They have to be well fed and watered before they discuss anything.

Taking off your jacket and rolling up your sleeves is a sign of getting down to work in Britain and Holland, but in Germany people regard it as taking it easy.

American executives sometimes signal their feelings of ease and importance in their offices by putting their feet on the desk whilst on the telephone. In Japan, people would be shocked. Showing the soles of your feet is the height of bad manners. It is a social insult only exceeded by blowing your nose in public.

The Japanese have perhaps the strictest rules of social and so business behavior. Seniority is very important, and a younger man should never be sent to complete a business deal with an older Japanese man. The Japanese business card almost needs a rulebook of its own. You must exchange business cards immediately on meeting because it is essential to establish everyone's status and position.

When it is handed to a person in a superior position, it must be given and received with both hands, and you must take time to read it carefully, and not just put it in your pocket! Also the bow is a very important part of greeting someone. You should not expect the Japanese to shake hands. Bowing the head is a mark of respect and the first bow of the day should be lower than when you meet thereafter.

The Americans sometimes find it difficult to accept the more formal Japanese manners. They prefer to be casual and more informal, as 'illustrated by the universal 'Have a nice day! American waiters have a one-word imperative 'Enjoy' The British, of course, are cool and reserved. The great topic of conversation between strangers in Britain is the weather—unemotional and impersonal. In America, the main topic between strangers is the search to find a geographical link. 'Oh, really? You live in Ohio? I had an uncle who once worked there.'

'When in Rome, do as the Romans do.'

Here are some final tips for travellers.

In France you shouldn't sit down in a cafe until you've shaken hands with everyone you know.

In Afghanistan you should spend at least five minutes saying hello.

In Pakistan you mustn't wink. It is offensive.

In the Middle East you must never use the left hand for greeting, eating, drinking, or smoking. Also, you should take care not to admire anything in your hosts' home. They will feel that they have to give it to you.

In Russia you must match your hosts drink for drink or they will think you are unfriendly.

In Thailand you should clasp your hands together and lower your head and your eyes when you greet someone.

In America you should eat your hamburger with both hands and as quickly as possible. You shouldn't try to have a conversation until it is eaten.

II. Read the article again and answer the questions. Discuss the questions in pairs.

- 1 Which nationalities are the most and least punctual?
- 2 Why did the British think that everyone understood their customs?
- 3 Which nationalities do not like to eat and do business at the same time?

4 They (the French) have to be well fed and watered.' What or who do you normally have to feed and water?

5 An American friend of yours is going to work in Japan. Give some advice about how he/she should and shouldn't behave.

6 Imagine you are at a party in (a) England (b) America. How could you begin a conversation with a stranger? Continue the conversations with your partner.

7. Which nationalities have rules of behavior about hands? What are the rules?

8 Why is it not a good idea to ...

... say that you absolutely love your Egyptian friend's vase.

... go to Russia if you don't drink alcohol.

... say 'Hi! See you later!' when you're introduced to someone in Afghanistan.

... discuss politics with your American friend in a McDonald's.

IV. Discussion

1 Do you agree with the saying 'When in Rome, do as the Romans do'? Do you have a similar saying in your language?

2 What are the 'rules' about greeting people in your country? When do you shake hands? When do you kiss? What about when you say goodbye?

3 Think of one or two examples of bad manners. For example, in Britain it is considered impolite to ask people how much they earn.

4 What advice would you give somebody coming to live and work in your country?

In search of good English food

By Verona and Jason Winner

How come it is so difficult to find English food in England? In Greece you eat Greek food, in France French food, in Italy Italian food, but in England, in any High Street in the land, it is easier to find Indian and Chinese restaurants than English ones. In London you can eat Thai, Portuguese, Turkish, Lebanese, Japanese, Russian, Polish, Swiss, Swedish, Spanish, and Italian—but where are the English restaurants?

It is not only in restaurants that foreign dishes are replacing traditional British food. In every supermarket, sales of pasta, pizza and poppadoms are booming. Why has this happened? What is wrong with the cooks of Britain that they prefer cooking pasta to potatoes? Why do the British choose to eat lasagna instead of shepherd's pie? Why do they now like cooking in wine and olive oil? But perhaps it is a good thing. After all, this is the end of the 20th century and we can get ingredients from all over the world in just a few hours. Anyway, wasn't English food always disgusting and tasteless? Wasn't it always boiled to death and swimming in fat? The answer to these questions is a resounding 'No', but to understand this, we have to go back to before World War II.

The British have in fact always imported food from abroad. From the time of the Roman invasion foreign trade was a major influence on British cooking. English kitchens, like the English language, absorbed ingredients from all over the world—chickens, rabbits, apples, and tea. All of these and more were successfully incorporated into British dishes. Another important influence on British cooking was of course the weather. The good old British rain gives us rich soil and green grass, and means that we are able to produce some of the finest varieties of meat, fruit and vegetables, which don't need fancy sauces or complicated recipes to disguise their taste.

However, World War II changed everything. Wartime women had to forget 600 years of British cooking, learn to do without foreign imports, and ration their use of home-grown food.

The Ministry of Food published cheap, boring recipes. The joke of the war was a dish called Woolton Pie (named after the Minister for Food!). This consisted of a mixture of boiled vegetables covered in white sauce with mashed potato on the top. Britain never managed to recover from the wartime attitude to food. We were left with a loss of confidence in our cooking skills and after years of Ministry recipes we began to believe that British food was boring, and we searched the world for sophisticated, new dishes which gave hope of a better future. The British people became tourists at their own dining tables and in the restaurants of their land! This is a tragedy! Surely food is as much a part of our culture as our landscape, our language, and our literature. Nowadays, cooking British food is like speaking a dead language. It is almost as bizarre as having a conversation in Anglo-Saxon English!

However, there is still one small ray of hope. British pubs are often the best places to eat well and cheaply in Britain, and they also increasingly try to serve tasty British food. Can we recommend to you our two favourite places to eat in Britain? The Shepherd's Inn in Mulberry, Cambria, and the Dolphin Inn in Kingston, Devon. Their steak and mushroom pie, Lancashire hotpot, and bread and butter pudding are three of the gastronomic wonders of the world!

II. Read the article more carefully. Choose the best answer: a, b or c a How many different forms of transport can you use to get around town?

b Which forms of transport are best and worst for the environment?

c Give examples of any problems you have getting around your home town

The first underground railway system in the world was in London. It opened in 1863 and ran 4 miles (6.5 kilometers) from the west of London to the City in the east. The first lines were built close to the surface and used steam trains. They then built deeper tunnels and the electric underground railway opened in 1890.

This system was called the Tube, still the most popular name for the London Underground. Some of the tube stations are so deep that they were used as air-raid shelters during the Second World War when hundreds of families would spend the night in the stations.

One million people commute into central London every day. Sixty per cent of these people use the Tube, mainly because the London Underground system extends far into the suburbs: the Northern Line, running from north to south, covers 18 miles (28 kilometers); the Piccadilly Line, running from east to west is 47 miles (76 kilometers) long London taxis drive round the centre of the city looking for custom. Taxis are often called cabs, from the French word cabriolet, which is a nineteenth-century word for a coach drawn by a horse-Traditional taxi-drivers, or cabbies, are proud of their knowledge of London. They have to know every street in the 113 square miles of central London and spend up to four years learning the best routes. To get their license, they have to pass a series of tests, known as The Knowledge, until they are absolutely accurate in their answers. Because of this long training period, cabbies are often angry that people can drive minicabs without a license. Minicabs look like normal cars, do not have meters and cannot pick up people in the street: people have to phone for one.

Most London buses are red. In one year, London's buses travel 163 million miles. That is all the way to the Sun and % of the way back! Buses in London are not as popular as the Tube because they get stuck in traffic. London traffic now moves at an average of 6 miles per hour, the same speed as when there were horse-drawn coaches

Alternative forms of transport

Can you think of any other forms of public transport in towns, apart from buses and underground trains?

One of the most popular forms of urban transport in Britain used to be the tram. They were first used in London in 1861, but they were all replaced by buses after 1945. Trams, however, are making a comeback. South Yorkshire has a 19-mile (30-kilometre) Supertram network which opened 1994. Manchester, too, uses trams as part of its Metrolink system, while many other cities are considering alternatives to buses. The first section of the Manchester Metrolink opened in 1992. It has reduced car trips by an estimated 1 million a year.

Manchester's trams carry up to 250 people each. They are clean and quiet. They do not get stuck in traffic. There are no steps so they are easy to use if you are disabled, have a pram or are carrying lots of shopping.

The most environmentally friendly vehicle is a bicycle, but cycling in Britain can be dangerous as there are not many bicycle lanes in British cities. Many drivers do not realize that there are cyclists on the roads: cyclists, like pedestrians, are almost as likely to be killed or injured as motorists. This is why an increasing number of cyclists wear helmets and fluorescent clothing.

II. Answer the questions:

1. How many different forms of transport can you use to get around town?
2. Which forms of transport are best and worst for the environment?
3. Is cycling encouraged in your home town? In what ways?
4. Can you think of any other forms of public transport in towns, apart from buses and underground trains?

III. List all the forms of transport in your home town. Give each transport system a number between 1 (very bad) and 10 (excellent) in each of the following areas: noise, cost, convenience, frequency, safety, exhaust fumes. Discuss your results in groups.

IV. Give examples of any problems you have getting around your home town

Russia. Geographical Position and Political System.

If we have a look at the world map, we will notice immediately that Russia is the largest country on our planet. It's total area is 17,075,200 sq km. Just to better realize how large our country is it is enough to say that it occupies almost one-seventh of the Earth's surface and it is approximately 1.8 times the size of the USA. Moscow is the capital of Russia and is the most important city in the country due to its central role in the economic, political, scientific and cultural life of the country. Russia is situated in two continents and the Urals make a natural divide of the country: the territory west of the Urals is included into eastern part of Europe and the territory east of the Urals is included into northern Asia. Russia's climatic conditions range from sub arctic in the north to subtropical in the south with temperate and continental in the middle of the country. The country is washed by 13 seas and 3 oceans. Drinking water supply is made up by more than two million rivers and lots of beautiful lakes. The Volga is one of the largest rivers worldwide, whereas Lake Baikal actually is the deepest lake in the world and is considered by many scientists a natural wonder due to its fascinating flora and fauna. The lowest point in Russia is in the Caspian Sea (-28 m below the sea level), and the highest point is Mount Elbrus (5,630 m above the sea level). Our country is one of the richest in natural resources, which include large deposits of oil, natural gas, coal, and many other minerals. According to the latest population census conducted in 2004, there are 143,782,338 people in Russia. Russia's border line length is more than 20,000 km and it borders on the following countries: Azerbaijan, Belarus, China, Estonia, Finland, Georgia, Kazakhstan, North Korea, Latvia, Lithuania (Kaliningrad Oblast), Mongolia, Norway, Poland (Kaliningrad Oblast), and Ukraine. Besides, Russia has a sea-boundary with the American state of Alaska in the Far East. Administratively, our country is composed of the following divisions: 49 oblasts, 21 republics, 10 autonomous okrugs, 6 krais, 2 federal cities, and 1 autonomous oblast. Russia is a federation. According to that type of government, power is formally divided by the constitution between the central or federal authority and all its constituent regions, that is oblasts, okrugs, krais. The executive branch of the Russian Federation is composed of the president, and the government headed by the prime minister. Since 7 May 2008, Dmitry Anatolievich Medvedev has been the chief of state. There is also a so-called Presidential Administration, which supports the president with advice, makes drafts of presidential decrees. Presidents in Russia are elected by popular vote every four years

The Russian Legislative branch, also known as Federal Assembly, is composed of two parliamentary chambers: the Federation Council and the State Duma. The Federation Council has 178 seats. Its members are appointed by each of the 89 federal administrative units and serve four-year terms. As for the State Duma, there are 450 seats there. Its members are elected by direct, popular vote and serve four-year terms as well as the Federation Council members. The following parties are currently represented in the State Duma: United Russia, Communist Party, LDPR, Motherland, People's Party, and other. The Judicial Branch of the Russian Federation is composed of the Constitutional Court, the Supreme Court and other lower level courts. It is important to note that judges for all types of courts are recommended by the president and later appointed by the Federation Council.

The United Kingdom. Geographical Position and Political System.

The official name of Great Britain is the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland. Sometimes, a short name for this country is used, which is the UK. The capital of the country is London. The United Kingdom is situated northwest of France on more than five hundred islands including one-sixth of the island of Ireland. The largest of these islands is called Great Britain. We should note that the name Great Britain does not refer to the whole country but only to England, Scotland, and Wales. Great Britain is the largest island in Europe and eighth largest in the world. It is almost twice the size of Iceland or Cuba. The total area of the UK is over 244,000 sq km. The UK is 500 km wide and approximately 1,000 km long. However, due to the deeply indented coast line, no point is farther than 125 km from the tidal waters. The UK has land boundaries only with one country, Ireland. Its closest continental neighbours are France and Belgium.

Since the United Kingdom is an island country, it is surrounded by water: by the Atlantic Ocean and the Irish Sea in the north-west and west, and by the North Sea in the east.

The Great Britain is separated from the European mainland by the English Channel.

In the north-west, it is separated from the island of Ireland by the North Channel.

The geographical position of the country was favourable for sea trade, which partly accounts for the country's economic success story. Although the UK is as close to the North Pole as eastern part of Siberia, its climate is much milder. The British climate is notorious for sudden changes, yet temperatures rarely fall below -10C or go higher than +32C. The lowest point in the UK is The Fens, which is 4 metres below the sea level.

The highest point in the country is mount Ben Nevis, which is 1,343 m high. The country boasts relatively large deposits of natural resources such as coal, oil, natural gas, iron ore, limestone, salt, and others. The UK used to consume much coal in the past which led to the SMOG in the fifties of the last century and persuaded the government of the country to opt for more environment-friendly sources of energy. According to the last estimates in 2004, there are 60,270,000 people in the UK most of whom are English (80%). People of Scottish origin make up almost 10% of the population, Irish 2.5%, and Welsh almost 2%.

The United Kingdom is a parliamentary democracy, which actually means that the legislature or the parliament selects the government composed of a prime minister along with the cabinet ministers according to party strength as expressed in elections.

That is if a political party has won most votes in the parliamentary elections, it is going to form the government of the country also called the cabinet. At the same time, the United Kingdom is a constitutional monarchy traditionally ruled by a monarch. The current monarch, her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, succeeded to the throne in 1952 and is Head of State, though this is a rather symbolic role. British Parliament is the oldest in the world and is composed of two chambers: the House of Lords and the House of Commons. The House of Lords consists of approximately 500 life peers (that is those who may sit in the Parliament all their lives), 92 hereditary peers (that is those whose children will have the right to sit in the Parliament) and 26 clergy representing church.

Apart from its parliamentary functions, the House of Lords is the highest court in the state. The House of Commons, unlike the House of Lords, is formed by regular elections in which citizens elect 659 members of parliament (or MPs) representing different political parties. The largest parties are the Labour Party and the Conservative Party.

English Speaking Countries

Today, more than 300 million people use the English language as their native language. Although English is the official or one of the official languages in over 45 countries, the most important English speaking countries are the United Kingdom, the United States of America, Canada, Australia, Irish Republic, and New Zealand. I am going to give a brief description of all these countries.

The full name of the United Kingdom is the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland. The capital of the UK is London. Other important cities are Liverpool, Manchester, Glasgow, Birmingham, and Cardiff. Great Britain is actually the biggest island in Europe containing England, Wales and Scotland.

Population of the UK is about 60 million people. Almost 80% of the population which is 45 million people lives in England, in Scotland over 5 million, in Wales over 3 million, and in Northern Ireland about 2 million people. Ethnically, the country consists of English, Scots, Welsh, and Irish, although there are large immigrant communities representing India, Turkey and other countries. Great Britain is administratively divided into 55 counties with certain amount of autonomy in local matters reserved by law. The UK is a parliamentary monarchy, although the monarch plays a rather symbolic role. The British Parliament is one of the oldest in the world and consists of two houses: the House of Commons and the House of Lords.

The United Kingdom is a highly developed country with many scientific and cultural centres. This country gave us a world language, almost all modern ball games and many other kinds of sport. It created a culture which influenced the evolution of the world civilization.

The biggest English speaking country is the USA. It occupies almost half of the continent of Northern America and borders on Canada in the north and Mexico in the south. Having the total area of over nine million sq km it is one of the largest countries in the world. The population is about 250 million people, most of whom live in towns and cities. The administrative and political of the country is its capital Washington D.C., named after the first US President George Washington. Here are many federal institutions are situated such as Capitol, the main building of US Congress, and the White House, which is the official residence of the US President. At the same time, the main economic and financial of the USA is New York, lovingly called "Big Apple". Second largest city in the USA is Los Angeles, an industrial and educational centre. The Wall Street in New York is the symbol of financial power of the USA.

The biggest and most important stock exchange is situated on that street as well as head offices of hundreds of companies of world level. Other important US cities are: San Francisco, Chicago, and Boston. The USA consists of fifty states. Each state has its own constitution, a parliament and a government headed by a governor. The most powerful political parties of the USA are the Democratic and the Republican parties, which alternatively win the general elections for the president's office.

It is interesting that neither the constitution nor any other federal law of the USA contain anything about English as the official language of the country! The importance of the USA in today's world politics, technology, and pop-culture cannot be overestimated and is evident.

Canada is situated north of the USA. Canada is second largest country in the world after Russia. Its climate and nature is very much like in our own country. Canada has two official languages with equal status: French and English. It is divided into 10 provinces and 2 northern territories. The population is about 25 million people. Most developed territories are those adjacent to the US border. Ottawa is the capital of the country. In the past, the city was called Bytown but then given its present name in 1854. The country's largest city and major port is Montreal.

Australia is the only country in the world taking up the territory of a whole continent, which has the same name. This country is unique in many ways. It has no land borders with any countries. Its flora and fauna has exotic plants and animals you can meet only there, such as kangaroos and humming-bird. Most Australians are of British or Irish origin because it used to be the British colony and the local population used to be mercilessly killed by the colonists. Canberra, the capital of the country, was founded in 1913 as a planned capital. Australia is the largest wool producer in the world. According to some estimates, there are more sheep living in Australia than people! Australia's only close neighboring country is New Zealand, which is situated on two islands: the North and the South Island. The capital of the country is Wellington. New Zealand has a population of nearly 3.5 million people, most of whom speak English and are of European origin. Officially, the country is headed by the British monarch, who is represented by the governor-general.

Ireland's official name is the Irish Republic. It is separated from Britain by North Channel. Its population is almost 4 million people. The official languages are English and Gaelic. The capital of the country is Dublin. It was the birthplace for many famous people such as James Joyce or Jonathan Swift. It is also the most important commercial and financial centre of Ireland. For eight hundred years up until 1922 Dublin had been under the English rule. Country's favourable geographic position on the way of the warm ocean current called Gulf Stream makes it a nice country to visit. It is a wonderful country with striking coastlines and unspoilt landscapes.

An English-speaking World

Language belongs to each of us. Everyone uses words. What is it about language that makes people so curious? The answer is that there is almost nothing in our lives that is not touched by language. We live in and by language. We all speak and we all listen: so we are all interested in the origin of words, in how they appear and die.

The rise of English is a story of wonderful success. When Julius Caesar landed in Britain nearly two thousand years ago, English did not exist. Five hundred years later, in the 5th century, English was already spoken by the people who inhabited Great Britain but they were not many, and their English was not the language we know today. Nearly a thousand years later, at the end of the 16th century, when William Shakespeare created his works, English was the native language of about 6 million Englishmen. At that time English was not used anywhere else except Great Britain. Nowadays, four hundred years later, 750 million people all over the world use English and half of those speak it as a mother tongue. Of all the 2700 world languages English is one of the richest. For example, compare English, German and French: English has a vocabulary of about 500 000 words, German — 185 000, and French — fewer than 100 000. At the end of the 20th century English is more widely spoken and written, than any other language has ever been. It has become the language of the planet, the first truly global language. Three quarters of the world's mail and its telexes and telegrams are in English, More than half of the world's scientific periodicals and eighty per cent of the information in the world's computers are also in English. English is the main language of business. It is the language of sports: the official language of the Olympics.

The English language surrounds us like a sea, and like the waters of a deep sea it is full of mysteries. English is and has always been constantly changing. Some words die, some change their meanings and all the time new words appear in the language.

There are several ways to add new words to the language. One of them is by borrowing words from other languages. At the end of the 20th century in English there are many words that were borrowed from Latin, French, Spanish, Italian, Dutch and other languages. When Columbus came back from South America he brought home to Spain new plants potatoes, tomatoes and tobacco. With the plants he brought their names. This is how these words appeared in Spanish and later were borrowed from it by the English language.

The words that are borrowed tell us about the countries they have come from. For example, many Italian words that are now part of English (opera, operetta, piano) have to do with music. This is natural as Italian musicians have always been among the most famous in the world. Many of the words that people borrow from other languages are names of food.

The Capital of our Country — Moscow.

Moscow is the capital of Russia. It is the main economic, political, educational and cultural centre of our country. In Moscow there are most important state institutions. The Parliament and the Government of Russia are seated here as well as the President. Moscow is a modern megapolis. With over 10 million people it is one of the most populated in the world. It is also one of the largest with the surface of 880 sq km. It is a colourful and pulsating metropolis with innumerable places of interest and never-ending charm. Moscow has a long history. It was founded over 800 years ago by Grand Duke Yury Dolgoruki in 1147.

In the beginning it was a rather unimportant town, but year after year it grew into a significant city when, finally, in the 16th century it became the capital of the country. For the period from 1712 to 1917 the capital was moved to St Petersburg. Moscow is situated on the Moskva river, which flows through the whole city. Moscow residents and tourists love to take a walk along the wonderful embankments.

A boat trip on this river will open to you such city's beauties as the Novodevichy monastery, Gorky Park and the Kremlin.

The heart of the city, the Kremlin, is the city inside the city. It was built in the 12th century. There are many churches and museums inside the Kremlin as well as various governmental institutions. The Kremlin is a real masterpiece of architecture. On the territory of the Kremlin there are the Tsar-cannon and the Tsar-bell which have never been actually used. My Family.

Family is extremely important in our life. In a way, our family is our life. A family is not just a group of relatives living in one apartment or house. A family consists of the closest and dearest people in the world, always ready to listen to you, always ready to share your joy and to provide help in need.

Our family is not very large: my parents, my brother, my grandparents and I. Sometimes my uncle and aunt visit with their daughter and son, who are my cousins. Our family is very friendly. Any time, we have a chance we try to do something together, go to the country, play some kind of game for all or just sit at a table and tell each other funny stories.

I will start with my parents. My mother and father met at the university. They got married one year after graduation. They have been wife and husband for 19 years already.

My mother's name is Elena Ivanova. She is forty-three years old, although she doesn't look her age because she likes sports and goes swimming to a local pool three times a week. She is an interior designer. This is a very creative profession. Her job is to plan the decoration and furnishing of the interior of a house, an office, a shop, or an apartment. As you can imagine, she took professional care of our own apartment as well. Now, you can see immediately that every room, and every corner is a result of her loving efforts. My mother is very tolerant to my mistakes and sometimes mischievous behaviour.

My father's name is Pavel Ivanov. He is forty-five years old. My father is a journalist. He works for a local newspaper which covers mainly economics and politics of our native city. His job requires a lot of unexpected trips so he doesn't have any particular working schedule. He may go out early in the morning and come back well into the night. Especially in situations when he has to write a story for next morning's issue of the paper. Still, I think that my father's job is very interesting because you can meet lots of interesting people, you always have to find ways to organize your time better to manage to do all the things you have to. My father has a wonderful sense of humour and he is the best friend I can ever hope to have.

My brother's name is Alexey and he is a sixth-form pupil at the same school I used to go to. All my teachers say that Alexey is as clever as I was. I do believe he is so because I see how much he reads and does all the home assignments with great interest. However, that doesn't mean that Alexey is always staying at home getting ready for classes. He is also interested in photography. Every day he tries to find some time to go out and take pictures of something interesting. His favourite ones are views of some natural landscapes. He has made quite a lot of interesting photos and hopes to organize an exhibition one day soon. I think his works will be welcomed by specialists and advise him to get ready for a professional career in photography. He has no objections.

My granddaddy is sixty-seven. He is retired now, but before retirement, he was in the military so his family had to move from one place to another rather often. My grandma is sixty-five. She had always worked as a teacher before retirement. This made it easy for her to find jobs at any new place they would move to. My grandparents have been together for more than forty years and they still love each other. They are very wise and always helpful. I know for sure that they will be glad to help me whenever I need their assistance.

Ours is a very good family. When we come together for some family celebration it's like you are among your best friends. The English have a proverb: "No place like home". That's quite true, but it's the people who make a home comfortable and happy.

Friends.

To find a friend one has to be ready to get in contact with other people. You have to try to understand people when they are in need your help. Talking is very important between friends. If it is a good friendship, both friends care to talk and listen to each other. It doesn't necessarily mean that your friend wants you to help him/her. Sometimes it enough just to be with a friend and be heard. Friends try to treat each other's feelings with sincere attention. A good friend will always see when he or she is needed most and come immediately to help. That doesn't mean that a good friend must be able to read our thoughts. Neither can you read your friend's thoughts.

Among my friends, we are all equals. Without equality it is impossible imagine how you can be friends. If one person is playing the role of a boss and the other the role of a subordinate, how can you call this a friendship?

To my mind, friendship is a reasonable combination of such important things as trust, communication, understanding, and support. With your friend, you can be your natural self, without trying to put on a mask. You may have successes and failures in life, but then you come to your friend and you realize that this is a person who will accept you just you are.

At the same time, remember you will never create a lasting friendship if you do not try to be a friend yourself. You can't ask your friend to be attentive to your needs, helpful, and supportive without having those qualities yourself.

You can't remain friends if you see each other rarely. To stay real friends you have to exchange regular telephone call and get together at least from time to time. It is hard to find a good friend. It may take you half of life to find one. To lose a friend it is enough to ignore your friend for a while and not to get in contact with them. If you are too busy for personal meetings, send your friend an email, or send a postcard, even without any special occasion. You friend will appreciate that.

How do we become friends? Well, first of all you have to be acquainted. This happens either at school, or at some party with lots of people. Then, somehow you may start say some things which express your feelings about something more or less important. If a person responds to your openness in some way or other, he or she may disclose his or her thoughts on the same subject and this may be a good basis for your future friendship.

You must have some common with interests with your friend. Something you can do or enjoy doing something together. For example, you both like to go to the movies, or play table-tennis, or play computer games, or you have the same hobbies you can share like collecting stamps or postcards. This will be a common topic to talk about.

Some people say, to have one best friend in a lifetime is good, two friends is great luck, and that it is almost impossible to have three and more friends. As for me, I can say that I have two best friends. Their names are Slava, and Marina. I have known both of them since kindergarten. We went to the same school. When I got into hospital, they both visited me and brought some fruit and sweets to cheer me up. Marina is a tennis-player, so when she takes part in a competition Slava and I always come to the stadium to root for her. As she says, our support helps her a lot. At school, Slava did well on mathematics. Any time we needed additional explanation on some topic, he would agree to come together and do some exercises. We all exchange interesting books, or compact disks. In the summer we usually go to a summer camp together because we can't imagine to spend so much time apart. Today, we do realize that when we are adults it will be more difficult to stay in touch. Anyway, I am sure we will find a way to maintain our friendship as long as possible, just like a famous group "The Queen" sing in one of their greatest songs: "Friends will be friends, right to the end."

Seasons and Weather.

There are four seasons of the year: winter, spring, summer, and autumn. Each of the seasons has its importance for nature and we should admit any weather as something to enjoy. I am going to tell about all four seasons and give the description of the weather typical for each season.

Winter is the coldest season of the year and December, January, and February are the winter months. In winter, the days become shorter and the nights become longer until winter solstice which usually happens on December 22. After that, the days gradually get longer minute by minute. Days maybe be very gloomy with snowstorms and even blizzards at times. It can be very cold and unpleasant in winter with temperatures going below -20C. At the same time, winter is a wonderful season too. Many poets have sung winter in their works, for example the beautiful poem by Alexander Pushkin about frost and the Sun. The gently falling snow sparkles in the sun. It is also a season of joy for fans of winter sports. Snowy slopes and frozen are ready for skiing and skating. I like to go skiing in the yearly morning.

March, April and May are spring months. Snow melts down. The weather get warmer and warmer and people put their winter clothes back into the wardrobes. This is the time for nature to revive after the winter sleep. Migratory birds return to their native nests and start to sing in the trees announcing the end of the “all-white” season. The green of fresh leaves and grass takes over. Buds swell up and finally burst into brightly coloured flowers. Many a beautiful day in spring welcomes the option of walking about the city and taking pictures. Sometimes it may rain in spring but usually not for long and very soon the sky would clear up.

June, July and August are the summer months. This is the warmest season of the year. There is hardly a summer when the temperatures do not go over 30C for a few weeks or even a whole month. Days get longer and longer. The longest day of the year is June 22. The sun shines brightly. Sometimes it may drizzle with the sun shining through the rain. For pupils and students this is a very important because they have to take exams. It’s a pity we have to spend so much time learning and cramming instead of going out for a walk. However, exams will come to the end and then we will be able to go swimming and sunbathing, or else going hiking through a forest full of flowers of all colours and berries ready to be picked. Grown-ups try to take a holiday in summer. Together with their families, they go to the seaside and enjoy their time. No doubt, summer is the most favourite season for most of people.

Summer does not last for ever and finally autumn comes. In early September it may be rather cold and windy, with showery rains everywhere leaving puddles which children merrily splashing through them. But my mid-September the days will be warmer again. This is when Bab’ye Leto, or Russian Indian Summer returns summer back for a couple of weeks. Autumn is a season of yellow and orange colours with leaves covering the ground as some magic carpet woven by nature itself. Sometimes in the morning it is foggy. Very rarely the fog maybe very thick but then it would lift and the sun will greet everybody with its last warm rays before winter. There is a lot of sleet with gusts of strong wind. First frosts and snow may come as early as end of October. By the end of autumn, winter takes over and nature goes on to another cycle.

Whatever the season or weather, enjoy them anyway! As a song goes: “Nature doesn’t have a bad weather”.

Studying foreign languages.

Studying foreign languages is of great importance for everyone. The reasons for studying foreign languages are numerous. They can be grouped into professional and personal reasons. First of all, speaking a foreign language makes travelling an unforgettable experience because you will be able to better understand the beauties of the country you are visiting. Others learn languages to create more employment opportunities. Employers at most companies require applicants to speak at least one language. One great person said once: "The more languages one speaks, the lives he will live." This is true, keeping in mind that knowing foreign languages broadens ones horizons, opens up a wealth of new information and makes him or her more knowledgeable about other cultures.

Of all the languages, English is surely most popular. Although, Chinese is spoken by most people, English has become truly a world language. More and more English words and expressions come into our language. About 100 years ago, an artificial language was invented by a Polish doctor, which is called Esperanto. It was intended to serve as language of international communication. Yet, Esperanto lost the competition to English. English is spoken at international political summits and at the United Nations Organization. Modern pop and rock music of all genres is mostly in English. International scientific magazines are published in English. Business people speak English when negotiating with foreign partners all around the world.

When you decide to learn a foreign language, you should keep in mind the following several suggestions. To start with, studying a language is not just about understanding some grammar rules and learning by heart some words. Of course, these are important activities as well. Yet, to have real success, you have to use this information in constant practice by speaking, listening, reading and writing a foreign language. Everybody can learn a foreign language if he invests enough effort.

In order to be effective when learning a foreign language you have to study on a daily basis. It's impossible to learn how to speak a foreign language at the day of the final examination or a job interview with the employer. It is a good thing to pronounce everything you learn out loud. This helps to improve the speaking skills and makes it easier to remember new words because you learn them not only by reading but hearing the new information at the same time.

It is very important to go back and review what you have learned every now and again. The better you know the previous language stuff, the easier it is going to be for you to learn new information.

You shouldn't be afraid of making mistakes when learning foreign languages. It's better use the mistakes to your benefit by correcting them than not to try at all! You should use every opportunity for speaking to a native-speaker. Try to make yourself familiar with different dialects and accents of your target-language. This will make you more comfortable with understanding them in future. If it's difficult to find a native-speaker, watch foreign television or listen to foreign radio.

Sometimes I ask myself: How long will it take me to learn the language of my choice, that is the English language? After I talked to several people who teach English or speak it at a very good level, I came to the conclusion that it may take a life-time to learn a foreign language perfectly well and I am absolutely ready to continue my study.

Finally, I would like to say that a person who learns a new language is never the same. When people study a foreign language, their analyzing skills improve and their memory is enhanced. Their creativity is gradually increased. Learning other country's culture, they come to better understand their own culture.

Literature in My Life. My Favourite Book.

Literature is of great importance for everybody. Literature is a rather complex thing. There are many genres of literature. As a rule, one mentions prose, drama, and poetry. Prose maybe written in the form of a novel, a short story, or an essay. A piece of poetry may take the form of an ode, a sonnet, an epic.

Since the very early days of our lives, we either are read books or later read them ourselves. Books have been there for thousands of years. They have accumulated all the wisdom of the human race. When we are read fairy tales or poems for children, we learn simple truths about nature and relationships among people. The more we are read in early childhood, the more we will know about life and find our own place in life.

Then we start reading books ourselves. Books are the basis for the development of a personality. By reading books, one gets to know different thoughts of different people. In a way, we live a whole new life any time we read a new book.

I personally can't imagine my life without books. At school, we have to read a lot of classical literature. I think this is very important that we come to know with the treasures of our culture. These treasures have been tested by time and have come to our times without losing their topicality. At the same time, there are many books that are not included in the school programme, which are also very interesting and useful.

Books may help one to forget his or her problems. With the help of books, we can travel in time back to any age or in future worlds. We can fly into space, climb mountains, and go deep down the oceans. Unlike television, when we mostly just sit and watch, books require active involvement of imagination. I am sure one must read at least fifty pages every day. This will help keep your brain fit at any age. Such a pity seems to become less exciting than before. At least that's what parents always tell me. I do agree with them.

At my home, there are many books. My parents, my sister and I have our own bookshelves, where we keep our most loved books. Very often, we give each other a book as a present.

Knowing a foreign language, gives a possibility to read masterpieces of world literature in the original. Even very talented translators may not be able to express the same meanings quite so vividly and precisely as a certain foreign writer.

I have read several books in English. One of my most favourite ones is a novel called "To Kill a Mockingbird" by an American writer Harper Lee. The novel is full autobiographical details. The novel takes place in a small town Maycomb, which is very similar the writer's own native town. The novel's main character, Atticus Finch, was a lawyer just like Lee's father. The book deals with many important questions. One of the most significant is whether people are generally good or evil. This question is answered in describing the life of two children, Scout and Jem. The novel tells how they assume that all people are good. They seem to believe that all people are good in their childhood because have never seen evil. As people grow older they come across evil. They start to realize that evil is part of life and one has to admit this fact. Atticus Finch is a very experienced man who has met and understood evil and managed to lose his belief that people can be good. Atticus is of the opinion that people cannot divided simply into good and bad ones. He thinks that most people have both good and bad qualities. Atticus tries to teach that wisdom to Jem and Scout. I think this book is very educative. It helps young people better understand the nature of relationships among people. With time, I realize the fact that will have to read the book again because I will understand some deeper thoughts better, which the author wanted to tell her readers. I advise you to read that book as well.

Mass media.

What do we have in mind when we talk about mass media? Mass media include all the people and organizations that provide information and news for the public. Such means of communication are television, radio, magazines and newspapers. The most recently invented mass medium is the Internet, which combines the benefits of the more traditional ones. The mass media surround us all our lives. They influence the way we look at the world and very often are able to change our positions and opinions.

The printed media, that is newspapers and magazines remain very popular nowadays. The English word "newspaper" does reflect its content quite accurately. On the one hand, newspapers and magazines do tell us about the latest developments in all areas of life, such as politics, culture, and the like. On the other hand, they may have deep analysis of a situation, advice relating to health-issues, advertising and other types of information apart from purely news articles. There are hundreds of newspaper and magazines specialized, so to say, in a specific area: in sports, gardening, politics or child-raising.

Radio and TV are probably among the most important inventions ever made by man. Listening to the radio does not require complete concentration. You can continue whatever you are doing at the time and still be able to follow the broadcast programmes. Although radio is able to educate and to inform, to my mind today radio plays primarily the role of entertainment. Every town has a dozen of musical radio stations catering to different musical tastes, from classical music to pop and rock music. As for television, it is probably the most popular from all mass media. There is hardly a household without a TV-set.

Television is always available as a source of education and entertainment, although to my mind the entertainment-related programmes are too many. For instance, lots of people find “soap operas” too boring and banal. A soap opera is a serialized drama, which usually deals with domestic themes. It is characterized by sentimentality. The history behind this genre is very interesting. Soap operas are called so because companies producing soap were typical sponsors of the first television serials. TV talk-shows are very popular nowadays. Talk-shows are programmes in which hosts invite guests who give their opinions on a chosen topic and take part in the following discussion with the audience or with other guests. Different quiz-shows are also generally liked by the viewers. In quizzes, players have to answer a number of questions testing their general or specific knowledge and the best player gets some kind of reward, usually an amount of money.

The Internet is an amazing combination of the three traditional mass media, that is the press, the radio and the television. You can read on-line versions of papers and magazines in any language. If you have special software you can even listen to the radio online. As for me, every morning I listen to the BBC radio programmes over the Internet. For learners of English it is a very effective way of getting familiar with different dialects and accents. Moreover, in the nearest future everybody will be able to watch television broadcast in the Internet. Besides, the Internet is a very democratic means of communication. If you think you have something interesting to tell to others, or you want to share your expert knowledge online, you can easily create your own site and change it regularly as needed just like a real newspaper or a magazine. You can send messages any place in just several seconds and talk to other people in online chats or forums. The Internet is believed to have become a world of its own, with specific rules of etiquette, and particular language.

There are people who think that with the invention of the Internet all other kinds of mass media will disappear very soon. I absolutely disagree with that and believe that all of them will continue to have their own dedicated users for many years.

Travelling.

Why do people travel? That’s a question which welcomes dozens ready answers. I have always dreamt to be able to travel as much as I want and to see the world. There are so many interesting places to go. Now I will try to explain why and how I would like to travel.

Of course, there are different kinds of travel. On the one hand, you can come to a travel agent’s office and discuss all the details of the future tour. You can see the pictures of the hotel and all places you are going to see. You buy the whole tour package including medical insurance and tickets to and from the chosen place. When you come to the destination, you go sightseeing with a guide and according with a plan. On the other hand, you can get some of your friends interested in a back-pack march to the forest near your native home. There you could simply put up tent, make a fire, bake some potatoes and enjoy the nature. I am not sure what kinds of travelling, the wholly prepared or the improvised is better. Every person decides for himself or herself what to choose.

In any case, travelling should be challenging and unpredictable. You never know what other skill you will need or learn during your next trip. Even if you make a research of the places to visit during your travel, you will surely meet something you would never see in travel-guides and tourist-leaflets. If you are going to spend in a country at least several days, you will surely learn some words in the local language, no matter how difficult the language is. You meet local people, get in contact with them in the markets, shops, hotels, and day by day start to understand them.

Travelling you meet people who are also travelling. You can exchange your travel experiences with them; share your favourite pictures of the sights.

Also, when you travel to other countries you can get to know new foods typical for a country of your stay.

According to your physical shape or depending on how much money you can afford to spend on a trip you can arrange a hiking trip, a safari, a cultural tour, or an adventure cruise. You can travel by train, by plane, by car, by ship, or on foot. And every way of transportation has its benefits. For example, travelling by train will give you a chance to see many picturesque landscapes and make friends with your wagon-companions. Yet, travelling by planes saves you much time if you intend to spend more time at the place of final destination, though plane tickets are usually much more expensive. If you travel by your own car, you can plan the route yourself, go where you want and see the things you chose to see.

Very recently, there have appeared new types of travelling. First of all, very fashionable has become the so called ecologic tourism, or ecotourism. Ecotourists do not go to cities for clubbing or going to parties and enjoying it all. Instead, they go to a place in the country and spend a week or two with farmers. They wake up early in the morning, go riding horses or walk along the green hills, breathing fresh air and watching nature around them. This way, such people manage to find an escape from their hectic routine life.

I would not say, I am a fan of ecotourism. At least for the time being, I would prefer something more active and daring. For example, space tourism. You may well remember that not so long ago there was the first space tour. An American man flew into space as the first space tourist in human history. Of course, that doesn't mean that he is going to be followed by millions of other space tourists. In any way, this is a good beginning and I do hope some day to go into space as a tourist.

Russian festivals and traditions.

Russia has a lot of festivals and traditions. There are also lots of holidays, national and professional. First, I am going to tell about the most popular festivals, and then I will tell you about national holidays celebrated in our country.

Unlike the Western countries, where Christmas is the main winter holiday, in Russia the New Year Eve is considered the most waited for and popular holiday. There are many particular Russian traditions linked to that holiday. First of all, it is the Grandfather Frost or "Ded Moroz" who is accompanied by the Snow Maiden or "Snegurochka". The Grandfather Frost looks very much like Santa Clause. The Grandfather Frost comes into every Russian family and brings gifts to all children with the help of the Snow Maiden. For New Year, kids decorate New Year's trees. Very often these trees are decorated with homemade toys.

Russian Christmas is celebrated on the eve of the 7th of January, that is two weeks later than in the Western countries. This difference is due to the Russian religious tradition which uses the old Julian calendar. According to the tradition, the whole Russian family gathers to have a special Christmas meal. When the first star appears, people greet each other with this phrase: "Christ is born!" However, many of us are glad to celebrate Christmas two times, on the 25th of December with the rest of the world and on the 7th January! Moreover, due to the difference in the currently used calendar and the traditional calendar of the Orthodox Church, we can celebrate to holidays of

New Year! We even have a special name for the second New Year holiday which is very confusing for foreigners —The Old New Year.

The main religious festival comes in spring and is called Easter. Christians believe that on that day Jesus Christ was resurrected from the dead, which gave much reason for joy and hope for all people.

The Easter is preceded by lent which lasts for forty days, during which time people are not allowed to eat meat, eggs and other kinds of food. To make this time easier there is a festival called ‘maslennitsa’, or butter festival. At this time, we eat pancakes and get ready for lent. On the Easter eve Russians cook special dishes, among which are Easter cakes. Also a very popular tradition is to paint eggs in different colours with specific meaning for each colour. The red colour, for instance, signifies Jesus’ blood on the cross. On Easter, people give each other a hug, kiss each other, say “Christ has arisen!” and exchange red eggs. In many regions of Russia, painting of eggs became a kind of art.

These are most important religious festival in Russia. There are also several national holidays celebrated in Russia throughout the whole year. On 23th of February is the Soldier’s Day. It has become a kind of Men’s Day and women give men small gifts. Soon after that holiday comes a holiday for all women, March 8. There is an unofficial holiday very popular among all Russian. It is the Day of Laugh of April 1. People tell jokes each other and sometimes play practical jokes on somebody. On this day, all women receive flowers and presents. May 1, or the Labour Day, used to be a grand holiday in the Soviet times with huge demonstrations in all cities. Victory Day on May 9 is dedicated to commemoration of all who fell in World War II. At 9pm a minute of silence is announced after which in all major Russian cities there are fireworks in the memory of more than 20 million people who died in the war. One of the newest official holidays is Independence Day on June 12. The beginning of the school year on September 1 is traditionally celebrated as the Knowledge Day. Teachers are given flowers by their pupils. November 7 used to be the October Revolution Day but it has been recently abolished. Finally, on December 12 we celebrate the Constitution Day which was adopted in 1993. Since it is also a new holiday, no special traditions have evolved linked to that day.

As you see, there are many festivals and holidays in Russia, traditional, religious and official ones. Besides these, we also love to celebrate western holidays such as Halloween or St. Valentine’s Day.

Holidays and Traditions in English Speaking Countries.

Each country has its own set of national holidays and traditions. When somebody is learning a foreign language it is very important to know the holidays and traditions of the countries where this language is spoken. This will give one a better understanding of the culture of these countries.

There are many English speaking countries. They are situated in different continents. This makes cultures of English speaking countries very different from each other because the conditions of life are so much dissimilar that it influenced the beliefs and folklore of these countries. Still, there some holiday and traditions which are common for all English speaking countries. I am going to tell you first about the most popular ones that are characteristic of these countries.

Christmas is celebrated on December 25. It is observed as the anniversary of the birth of Jesus. Christmas trees are decorated in every city or town. People get ready for this day weeks ahead buying presents for family members and close friends.

One of the most loved holidays is St Valentine's Day on February 14. This holiday has religious origin and dates back to third century. It was originally commemorating two martyrs both named St Valentine. With time, it was associated with love. Lovers give each other a Valentine card saying how much they love each other. Not long ago, this holiday was gladly welcomed in our country as well.

Easter is probably the most important religious festival in all English speaking countries. There is no specific date for this holiday but it usually occurs some time between March 22 and April 25. Easter commemorates the Resurrection of Jesus. On Easter morning children start to look for Easter eggs hidden somewhere by the Easter bunny. The Friday before Easter is called Good Friday and commemorates the Crucifixion. On this day people eat traditional hot cross buns marked with a cross.

On October 31, Halloween is celebrated. This is the eve of All Saints' Day. Halloween is traditionally associated with telling ghost stories and bonfires. In the past, people believed that all witches, ghosts and other evil spirits wanted to take over the world on that day. To scare away the spirits, people started to get dressed in costumes, put on spooky masks, light bonfires and put jack-o-lanterns in front of their homes. Today, in many schools pupils organize jack-o-lantern contests. Jack-o-lantern is a hollow pumpkin with holes cut out to represent a human face.

There is an interesting holiday in the USA, which is called the Groundhog Day on February 2. Strangely enough, but people believe that if a groundhog wakes after its winter-long sleep and sees its own shadow then the winter will continue for six more weeks.

For Ireland, the most important festival is St Patrick's day on March 17. St Patrick was born in fourth century and grew in Ireland, which was worshipping many gods. Being a dedicated Christian, St Patrick put all his efforts to make Ireland a Christian country, establishing churches and schools everywhere. There is a legend that St Patrick was able to work miracles. One of the most popular miracle was when Patrick drove all the snakes out of Ireland. Since then, Patrick is considered the Patron of Ireland.

Let's now turn to traditions common for all English speaking countries. For example, getting up from the wrong side of the bed in the morning is generally considered the reason why a person is in a bad mood. By the wrong side people meant the left side of the bed, since the left was always associated with something evil. Another widely known tradition is to blow out the candles on the birthday cake. The number of candles usually indicates the age of the person whose birthday it is and when the candles are blown out people believe that the secret wish of that person will come true and the whole year ahead will be happy.

Russian Food & Cuisine.

Every country in the world has its own cuisine. We have certain associations when we speak about French, Italian or Mexican cuisine. They all have something characteristic about themselves. What associations do have when we speak about Russian food and Russian cuisine. One can state that Russian food is what Russian people usually eat. However, considering how large a country Russia is and how many cultures there are in Russia, it is difficult to say that Russians in Moscow and in a small village have the same meals.

Life in cities is quick-paced, city dwellers are always rushing somewhere. That's why the fast food is becoming more and more popular in cities. Yet, traditional Russian food is much tastier and healthier than the fast food.

To understand our national cuisine, one should remember that Russia is a northern country in the most part and that our winters are rather long and sometimes very cold. That means that the food should be such as to give us enough energy. Among most popular components of Russian dishes are: potato, eggs, butter, bread, and meat. Very popular are milk products like sour cream, and curds; as well as fresh fruit and vegetables.

Russian cuisine enjoys quite a number of authentic national dishes for every part of a meal, be it appetizers, soups, main courses, desserts, or beverages.

Appetizers are usually served before main courses. We often start our meals with various salads. I would say that medley (vinegret) is probably loved by everybody in Russia. To cook medley, we mix boiled potato, carrot, and beet as well as salted cucumbers chopped in more or less equal cube-like pieces and add oil. For many festive occasions, we cook so called "seledka pod shuboi", or herring under coat. To make it, one has to boil potato, carrot, and beet; then grate all these ingredients and place them on a plate covering the herring in layers and finally dress it with mayonnaise. This salad is an extremely popular New Year dish. There is probably no family in Russia not including this salad into its New Year or birthday menu.

Let's now turn to the Russian soups, which are an essential part of afternoon meals. The classical Russian soup is borsch, or red-beet soup made of beet, meat, potato, and mostly served with sour cream, although some might prefer mayonnaise. Very characteristic of Russian cuisine is okroshka, or cold soup made of cold kvass with different vegetables, chopped boiled eggs and spices. Among other kinds of soup I would like to mention ukha, or fish-soup, mushroom soup, chicken soup.

After soups come main courses as a rule. Main courses are eaten at afternoon and evening meals. Usually they include meat and/or vegetables with garnishes. For the meat part, we can have cutlets or chops, fried fish or sausages. For garnishes, we might have potato or kashas, of which there are many kinds to choose from: buckwheat, rice and other. Very often pelmeny, or ravioli are mentioned among Russia-originated dishes. Strictly speaking, it is not. Yet, these small squares of pasta containing minced meat and spices are very popular in Russia. Although you can find dozens of pelmeny brands in the shops, we prefer legendary home-made pelmeny. Sometimes, instead of meat we use potato or curds and call this pelmeny-like dish vareniks.

After all these tasty things, it's time for Russian desserts. Pancakes are always welcome as a dessert and are usually served with jam, honey or sour cream. Pastries with berries, apples, and other fruit are also part of Russian food tradition.

Among traditional Russian beverages, to my mind, mors, kissel and kvass are most typical. Kissel is made of sweetened fruit puree and mors, which is a kind of berry drink, is made of cranberries, black-currants, or other berries. Kvass is an original Russian beverage made of stale bread and is probably most popular among traditional beverages.

English Traditional Meals.

Each country has its own traditional cuisine, which reflects its cultural and historic identity and makes this country different from others.

As a rule, the first meal of the day comes in the morning somewhere between 7 and 9am. For a typical breakfast in our days, many Englishmen have toast with butter or sometimes margarine and berry or fruit jam and marmalade, which is made from oranges. Very popular are fruit salads or fruit cocktails. For others, an ideal breakfast will include a bowl with appetizing cereal, such as cornflakes or a mixture of grains, nuts, and dried fruit also called muesli. These cereals are mixed with milk and often served to children, because it's considered very nutritious and healthy. As for a traditional English breakfast, it will consist of more wholesome substantial food, for example: bacon, sausages, omelet or poached eggs, baked beans, fried tomatoes, or even mushrooms. Some people love to eat a boiled egg with a strip of toast which is dipped into the yolk. Usual beverages for breakfast are tea, coffee or some kind of juice, though the most commonly drunk is orange juice.

Between 11am and noon, some people have a morning tea-break. This is a light snack including a biscuit with tea or coffee and is generally known as 'elevenses'.

Between 12:30 and 2:00 in the afternoon comes the time for a lunch. Some may have a small sandwich, others prefer soup and bread. There is also a traditional farmer's lunch consisting of traditional Cheddar cheese, some pickles and salad with some kind of meat pies. It is common in England not to cook the lunch at homes but go to a pub with one's friends. However, at Sunday lunch time the whole family may come together for a Sunday meal traditionally including roast beef with potatoes, various vegetables like green beans, peas, parsnip, and with gravy. Meat dishes, especially roast beefs, are traditionally served with Yorkshire pudding.

In the late afternoon, usually between 3pm and 5pm, tea-time comes. This is a rather small meal when people may drink a cup of tea with biscuits, cakes, or even sandwiches.

In the very early evening, at about 6 o'clock, the English usually have high tea. This is also a very light meal including After that, usually between 7pm and 9pm, the evening meal is eaten. There is a kind of confusion about the name for this meal. It is sometimes called either supper dinner. At the same time, dinner may also refer to lunch. At supper, or dinner if you prefer this name, people usually have the main dish and the dessert, or 'afters'. The main dish traditionally includes some kind of meat and vegetables, with potatoes never forgotten. The dessert may be served in the form of a pudding.

The most traditional English dishes are very greasy but they are not normally eaten every day. Most English have traditional dishes very rarely and most often on a special occasion. Although, the English are believed to be very conservative and sticking to their traditional way of life, they love to go out to a pub or a restaurant and try dishes from other countries. Most cities in England have Indian or Italian restaurants quite affordable for most visitors. Italian pizzas and pastas, Turkish kebabs, or Japanese sushi are also very popular in England. In all these places you can have so called take away food. Takeaway is a meal which you buy at a restaurant and eat at home. There are special restaurants selling exclusively takeaway food, so you can meet a Chinese or an Indian Takeaway. There are lots of fast food restaurants, most typical of which is a fish and chips shop. Yet, I would not advise to eat fast food too often because it is less healthy, though sometimes it can save you time.

Famous Russians.

If one were to name famous Russians, he or she could go on for ever and ever. Indeed, Russia is a country which has contributed in great part to world civilization. Among Russian scientists, writers, and artists, there are so many important names that it is very difficult to choose. I am going to tell about but a few people whom I respect for all they did for our country.

Alexander Pushkin is sure to be the first name to spring up in our memory when we think about Russian poetry. Pushkin played an exceptional role not only in the development of the Russian literature but also in the development of the Russian language itself. He was able to make Russian literature an integral part of the European literature. Pushkin's works accompany us since the very beginning of our lives. As children we are read his wonderful fairy tales; later in life we come to love his lyrical poetry. In his brief but very fruitful lifetime, Pushkin managed to write so many genius pieces of poetry that everybody can find something to their taste. Besides poetry, Pushkin wrote critical articles, historical works which are also an essential element of his literary legacy. His works have been translated into more than one hundred languages. This, on the one hand, can help people in other countries become familiar with Pushkin. Still, to get the real flavour of Pushkin's specific and unrepeatable style, one had better read his works in the original.

Mikhail Lomonosov is the first Russian scientist who became known to the whole world. His eagerness to get an education and hunger for knowledge drove him out of his native village, Kholmogory, when, at the age of 19, he travelled to Moscow on foot. After his studies in Moscow, he continued them in St-Petersburg and in Germany. Lomonosov became a universal scientist of encyclopedic knowledge with great achievements in chemistry, astronomy, geology, mineralogy and in other areas. Besides, he was the first to write the history of Russia in 1760. Also, Lomonosov was the father of Russian system of higher education. It was he who founded a university in Moscow, which was named after him in 1940.

Among Russian composers, Pyotr Ilyich Tchaikovsky is no doubt one of the most renowned to say the least. His musical genius places him in the list of most famous composers amongst such names as Bach, Beethoven, Mozart... Sure enough, Tchaikovsky is most eminent and distinguished Russian composer. There is hardly anybody who will not be touched by his operas and ballets. During his lifetime, Tchaikovsky quickly became popular not only in Russia but also in the whole world. He was heartily welcomed in many capitals and performed with constant and amazing success. For an educated person to see such masterpieces as Nutcracker, Swan Lake, Eugene Onegin are a must. Personally, I always do my best to reserve an evening for going to one of his brilliant operas or ballets.

The next famous person I would like to tell is Yuri Gagarin. To my mind, Gagarin should be considered the most important man of 20th century because he ushered the new era of space exploration by man. On 12 April, 1961 Yuri Gagarin flew into the orbit of the Earth aboard the spaceship called Vostok I. He was the first man in history to reach space. In his spaceship, Gagarin orbited the planet once and safely landed approximately 90 minutes later. Having landed, he realized that the spaceflight had made him a world sensation. Every newspaper around the globe placed his pictures on the first pages, all radio and TV station broadcast his happy face beaming with kind smiles. Of course, these 90 minutes had taken many years of hard work and preparation. Nobody knew how a human body might react to being in space. Yet, Yuri Gagarin was a strong and courageous person. He will always be remembered as the cosmonaut number one.

Famous people in English speaking countries.

English speaking countries have given lots of great people to the world civilization. Scientists and entertainers, writers and actors, sportsmen and politicians... It's very difficult to choose a few. However, I am going to tell you about the ones, who are most famous as far as my opinion goes.

No doubt, one of the best writers ever in human history without any question came from an English speaking country. His name is William Shakespeare. He became a symbol of the English literature. He was born in 1564 in Stratford-on-Avon in England. In the very early childhood he watched with admiration how visiting groups of actors created whole worlds on stage. He decided to become an actor himself. Although he did become an actor when he came to London at 21, but the real fame came to him when he started to write plays and pieces of poetry. His 154 sonnets have reached our times through all this time without losing their freshness and artistic value. His plays are full of life itself, be it "Hamlet", or "Othello" "Romeo and Juliet" or any other. His works have been translated into many languages. People all over the world enjoy Shakespeare's works. As for me, I like his sonnets and try to read them in the original, though sometimes they are difficult to understand after the first reading and takes a second and even a third reading to enjoy a sonnet completely.

Australia has given many famous entertainers. The most well-known Australian actors are Mel Gibson and Nicole Kidman. I would like to tell something about Nicole Kidman because she is my favourite actress. From her childhood Nicole was interested in entertainment. She began ballet lessons when she was three years old, mime class when she was eight, and acting classes when she was ten. Already at 14 she had her first great success with a role in an Australian TV film. When Kidman was 17, the whole Australia voted for her as the best actress of the year. Such talent immediately in great demand in Hollywood, where she debuted in 1990 with Tom Cruise. Since then, she has always been a movie star of world class. One of the best movies of hers is, of course, the musical "Moulin Rouge."

When we are discussing famous people in English speaking countries, one of the top positions must be given to the most famous ever rock group "The Beatles." The Beatles shaped not only music and the way it is now, but also entire generations. They became a model for how to behave, to dress, to think, even how to live. The members of the group, John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison, and Ringo Star met when they were still very young, no more than 17 years old. The first success came to the band when they started to work with a manager Brian Epstein. They recorded their first single in 1962. These were the songs still popular today: "Love me do" and "Please Please Me." From that time onwards, Beatlemania took over the whole world, which continued right till 1970, when the group members decided to break up. Unfortunately, Lennon's life tragically ended in December, 1980, when a fan murdered him; and George Harrison died in 2001 after he suffered from throat cancer. Anyway, "The Beatles" have remained popular with people of any age no matter where they are and whether they speak English or not.

Everybody knows Yuri Gagarin, the first man who flew into space. The next step of space exploration would be to land on the Moon. An American astronaut, Neil Armstrong, was the commander of Apollo 11 spacecraft, which flew to the Moon. On July 20, 1969, Neil Armstrong set foot on the lunar surface for the first time in human history.

On the moment when Armstrong left the spacecraft after the landing, he said the phrase, which became one of the most famous worldwide. He said: "That's one small step for a man, but one giant leap for mankind."

British Princess Diana without any question is a person to be remembered. She was born on July 1 1961. Her full name was Lady Diana Frances Spencer, and she was a daughter of the Earl of Spencer. But Diana was famous not as a member of the Royal family. Rather, she is remembered as an energetic charity activist. She was in touch with over 100 British and international organizations giving support to different groups of people. Most of her efforts were spent on fighting the landmines all over the world, and especially in Africa where huge expanses were killing thousands of innocent children every year. Thanks to her, lots of people were saved and relieved in time of trouble. Diana died dramatically in a car accident in France but is still in our hearts.
